HIS CLIENT.

"Extremes meet." This was the comment of the public of G——, a small manufacturing city of Massachusetts, when a partnership had been formed between Messrs. Briggs and Ludlow, attorneys-at-law.

Benjamin Briggs was about fifty years of age, and a rather fine-looking old man; but he was the owner of such a disposition as would not be admired by many, quick and to the point with everybody with whom he came in contact, and exceedingly abrupt and sharp in his manner of speaking.

In the community in which he resided he had never been seen without his habitual frown, whether in business or social life, though many were the methods tried by his young partner to drive dull care away and with it the sternness so long seated on his brow; but he had never been successful.

Harry Ludlow was a jolly, careless young man of twenty five, handsome, well educated and obliging. Never could it be said that he had been gruff with a client, and his great heart more than counterbalanced his partner's lack of sympathy and civility.

One day, while Mr. Briggs was busy at his desk, there came a timid rap at the office door. Without ceasing his writing, the old man called out in a sharp tone:

"Come in!"

On looking around, the lawyer was surprised to see that the new-comer was a young lady of about twenty summers, neatly attired. As she gazed on the old lawyer, her clear blue eyes wore a pleading expression. But in the same harsh voice he inquired:

"Well?"

"Oh, sir," cried his young visitor, almost breaking into tears, "heaven knows that I shrink from rushing to the law for aid, but I have been discharged from my situation in the woolen mills, and Mr. Duncan has refused to pay me for my last two weeks' work, simply because he has a petty spite against my poor mother. I cannot get employment elsewhere, and mother is very ill. Will you please collect what is due me, sir, of course retaining your accustomed fee? We cannot—"

"Just so, miss," the old man interrupted. "So Duncan has refused to pay you for your work, has he?"

"Yes sir."

"The confounded old rascal!"

"He may imagine he has good reasons, sir," she ventured.

"Nothing of the kind! It's pure rascality!" snapped Mr. Briggs. "What is your name, miss?"

"Jennie Moore," was the answer.

The old man turned to his desk to write the name, but wheeled around suddenly, looked his beautiful client in the face, and muttered something unintelligible to Jennie, and proceeded to question her.

"What was your father's name?"

"Samuel Moore."

"Humph! And was your mother's Sarah McDowell?"

"Yes sir. But pray what has that to do with the case?"

"Nothing, miss, absolutely nothing," he gruffly responded. But Jennie thought she could detect a tremor in his harsh voice when he asked if her father was dead.

"Can you collect the money by Thursday, sir?" she asked, after answering his last question affirmatively, wishing to escape his unpleasant interrogation. "It is mamma's birthday, and I would like to see her enjoy that day, at least."

"What!" cried the attorney. "That is my birthday, too!" Then, abruptly, "Tell your mother that I will dine with her on Thursday."

"But, sir," said Jennie, "we have scarcely any food in the house."

"No matter, no matter!" said Mr. Briggs, rather excitedly. "Here is a part in advance—no, don't thank me—call to-morrow for the balance;" and he gave her a crisp bank-note.

Jennie departed, wondering at the many eccentricities of the lawyer.

Next day she returned to the office, as she had been instructed. Mr. Briggs was not in, but she found Mr. Ludlow there, lolling idly in an office chair, and puffing a fragrant Havana.

He threw his cigar out of the open window on the appearance of the fair client, and said:

"Ah, good afternoon. Uncle—I always call Mr. Briggs 'uncle'—told me about you and left this envelope, saying it contained the amount of your claim. You musn't mind his gruffness, Miss Moore; he means well. You see I know your name; allow me to introduce myself—Harry Ludlow, at your service."

"I thank you both very much, sir," she said. "But has he retained his customary fee?"

"Certainly," replied Harry, with a little laugh. "Uncle would not lose his fee for the world. He told me to remind you of his determination to dine with you Thursday—and by the way, he vows he shall take me with him. He is terribly excited for some reason. Forgive my mentioning it, Miss Moore, but he actually commanded me to fall in love with you this very day"—and aside—"confound me if I haven't!"

A blush suffused Jennie's cheeks as this talkative young man made the last remark.

"It will be hard," she said, to entertain guests in our scantily furnished house; but as Mr. Briggs is so determined, and has been so kind to us, of course you are invited."

"And will certainly accept the invitation," responded Harry, promptly. "I hope, Miss Moore, that our friendship may commence now. Can I not have the pleasure of accompanying you home?"

"If you wish, sir," Jennie responded timidly; but the long absent roses illuminated her pale cheeks, and a glad thrill swept through her whole frame; for she could not look upon that handsome, manly fellow but to admire him.

The eccentricities of "uncle" were fully discussed and commented on, and Harry casually mentioned the fact that Mr. Briggs had declared that Jennie would also call him "uncle" within a week.

Of course Jennie could not fail to understand this startling insinuation, and, though her heart fluttered and beat faster with delight, she sharply censured Harry's undue freedom of speech.

Thus they, or rather Harry, chatted gaily until her abode was reached. To be sure it was a rickety old house, in the poorest part of the city, but our love-smitten hero could see nothing of the evidences of poverty with that beautiful face before him, with those pleading eyes upturned to his.

At last Harry returned to the office, only to find that his partner had not yet returned.

"By Jove!" muttered he, throwing himself languidly into an easy chair. "I have surely met my fate. Unquestionably the most beautiful face I have ever seen. She shall call him 'uncle'—if not within a week, at least within a year. But I must restrain myself, or I shall propose marriage before I have known her three days. It is consoling however, to have reason to think that my love may be reciprocated."

When Mr. Briggs returned an hour later, Harry noticed that he was very much excited.

"Well, uncle," said he, carelessly, "you have picked up an important case, I suppose."

"So I have, my boy,- so I have—but not such a case as you imagine. Was Miss Moore here?"

"Yes sir, about two hours ago—"

"Did you tell her to be sure to expect us on Thursday?"

"I did. But sir, what in the world induces you to compel this poor lady to squander all her hard earned money for the sake of giving you an elaborate dinner?"

"Humph! You'll see, my boy;" and Attorney Briggs actually chuckled; then he asked shortly, "What do you think of the girl?"

"I cannot give my opinion of the young lady on so short an acquaintance," answered Harry, evasively, but added, "My first impressions, are, however, decidedly favorable to Miss Moore.

"You seem to be anxious for a match, uncle."

"Maybe I am!" snapped the old man. "Do you know I've just finished ordering coal, flour, groceries, and everything else I could think of, to be sent to Sarah's—that is, Mrs. Moore's house. Been three hours at it—not through yet. Must have largest turkey in the city for Thursday's dinner."

And Mr. Briggs bounced out of the room as if shot from a cannon. Harry stared after him, amazement depicted on his countenance.

"Whew!" he whistled, "that surely isn't old Uncle Benjamin Briggs! Well, I'm glad that he has at last opened his cold heart to pity, particularly as I take a decided interest in the welfare of Miss Moore."

It was a clear case of love at first sight.

At last Thursday came. Harry was surprised to see Mr. Briggs attired in a new dress suit, with his cheeks glowing healthfully, and certainly not the shadow of a frown about his sparkling eyes.

Jennie had been to the office after receiving Mr. Briggs' gifts, to thank him personally for his kindness; and now when they arrived at the house, their glad benefactor was again overwhelmed with thanks by the poor widow. They were all glad to see that Mrs. Moore was fast regaining her health since being attended by the most skillful physician in the city, whom the thoughtful old man had engaged for her.

Jennie, attired in a neat new house dress, was the embodiment of beauty and grace, and seemed a small queen to Harry, who immediately engrossed her attention; and a queen indeed was she, for over his heart she reigned in undisputed sway, governing a subject in no way averse to submitting to any sweet tyranny.

After seating themselves at the table, the old lawyer, with tears in his eyes, invoked the Divine blessing, after which he began to speak. The gruffness was all gone, and he spoke in a kind, satisfied tone.

"This, dear friends," said he, "is the first supplication that has passed my lips since my angel mother used to teach my dear twin sister and myself to say our prayers together. That was many years ago. When about fifteen years old, I ran away from home, taking an assumed name that I might not be discovered. I prospered. After long years had passed I returned home to search for my parents and sister; but I found that my father and mother had died, and I could get no clew as to Sarah's whereabouts; I only learned that she had married a man called Samuel Moore. I finally settled down to practice in this city—but I cannot tell the whole story of my life now; don't you know me, Sarah?"

"Brother!"

Mrs. Moore was sobbing in the lawyer's arms, while tears of joy stood in the old man's eyes.

They were indeed twin brother and sister, and joyful was that fiftieth anniversary of their birth.

Harry and Jennie witnessed this strange scene in speechless wonder. Jennie was the first to recover.

"The prophecy has proven true," she cried. "Dear uncle, I am so glad you have come!"

She had called him "uncle" before the three days had expired.

What a happy reunion that was! All the recollections of the old times and childish pranks were told and retold by the old couple; but little cared Harry and Jennie for the past; they saw only the blissful present and a hopeful, very hopeful, prospect for the future.

Next day the Moores moved into an elegantly furnished cottage home prepared for them by the kind-hearted old lawyer, who also took up his abode there. For some reason, no doubt plain to the reader, Harry was a frequent and also a welcome visitor. And not many weeks passed by ere he resolved to take his case to court. Never did a lawyer plead his case more eloquently, sincerely or devotedly; and when Jennie laughingly appointed "Uncle Ben" as judge, that worthy lawyer immediately sentenced her to imprisonment for life in Harry's arms.

Mr. Vanderbilt's Wealth.

Mr. Vanderbilt's wealth is believed by those who should know to aggregate about $160,000,000. The Duke of Westminster is said to be worth $200,000,000, but Mr. Vanderbilt was a richer man, because the Duke's money earns him only about 2 per cent., but Mr. Vandercilt's averaged him nearly double that. Mr. Vanderbilt is said to have been the richest man in the world. Last year he held $54,000,000 of four per cent. bonds, and later he reduced this amount to $35,000,000 of government three and a half per cents. His government bonds were worth almost $75,000,000. At one time he owned 240,000 shares of Michigan Central, 300,000 shares of Northwestern and 200,000 shares of Lake Shore. He sold very much of his Lake Shore lately, and owned at his death about 50,000 shares. In addition he had 30,000 Chicago and Rock Island, 20,000 Delaware and Lackawanna, 100,000 Philadelphia and Reading, and about 20,000 shares in other roads, making in all about 860,000 shares of railway stock; also $22,000,000 worth of railroad bonds, $3,200,000 of state and city bonds and $2,000,000 in various manufacturing stocks and mortgages. He valued his house on Fifth avenue, with its art treasures, at 3,000,000.

His ordinary household expenses were $100,000 a year. In 1884 he gave a ball that cost $40,000. He loved horses and was a good judge of horseflesh. He sold Maud S. for $40,000. Although his fortune shrank last year materially through a big decline in stocks and through business depression, the recent bull movement of the past few months brought it up again.

His income was calculated as follows: $2,372,000 a year from Government bonds; $7,304,000 from railroad stocks and bonds; $576,695 from miscellaneous securities; total, over $10,000,000 a year, or $28,000 a day, $1,200 an hour or $19.75 a minute. He made no ostentatious display of his wealth and was charitable, although in this he had to be quiet or he would have been overrun by imposters. He was shrewder in business than many supposed he was: he knew enough to sell 250,000 shares of New York Central five years ago at 120 and buy governments at par.

He Guessed He'd Fight.

Politeness was born in him, and he couldn't help it. He drifted into a prominent town in the south soon after Johnston's surrender, and before anybody's temper had cooled down. He was after cotton, and he let the fact be known. He was from Connecticut, and he did not try to conceal it. He hadn't been in the town two hours before "an unregenerated" pulled his nose.

'Ah—yes!' said the man from Connecticut. 'Was that accidental?'

'No sir! No sir!' was the fierce rejoinder.

'Did it a purpose, eh?'

'Of course I did!'

'Well, I shouldn't a-thought it of you! I'll pass it over as a case of temporary insanity.'

An hour later, as he sat in the hotel, a fireeater approached him and spit on his boots and stood and glared at him.

"You must have a wobble to your tongue if you can't spit straighter than that,' said the man from Connecticut.

'I meant so sir—meant so!'

'Wanted to get me mad, eh?'

'Yes sir! Yes sir!'

'You shouldn't do so. When I'm roused I'm a hard man to handle I'll excuse this on the grounds that you don't know me.'

In the afternoon he was given a hint that he had better leave town at once, and when he demurred a lawyer sent him a challenge.

'What's it fur?' asked the Yankee as he read the missive.

'You insulted him, and he demands satisfaction,' expleined the messenger.

'Can't I argy the case with him?'

'No sir!'

'S'pose'n I give him five dollars to settle?'

'He wants to fight with you sir, and you must either fight or he will horsewhip you!'

'Warm me up with a rawhide, eh?'

'He will!'

'Shoo! but who'd a-thought it! Say, I'll gin him ten dollars.'

'Sir! You likewise insult me!'

'Do, eh? I swan I didn't mean to! Then I've got to fight?'

'You have.'

'May get killed, or kill the other feller?'

'Exactly.'

'Well, I'm kinder sorry. I never had but one fight in my life, and then I got licked. I don't want to be hurt, and I don't want to injure anybody else, and——'

'You'll wait to be horsewhipped!'

'I rather guess not. I guess I'll fight. I'll choose rifles at twenty paces and you kin pick on your own ground. Jist let me know when it's to come off, and I'll try to be thar.'

It came off next morning. He was 'thar.' They offered him an opportunity to apologize, but he wouldn't touch it. He stood up as stiff as a new barn door and bored a bullet through his man's shoulder, and came off without a scratch himself.

'Bein' as I'm out here now and bein' as somebody else may want to horsewhip me to-morrer, wouldn't this be a good time for him to show up and save time?' he asked as he leaned on his rifle and looked around him.

No one showed up. The Yankee liked the town and sent for his family. The people liked the Yankee and made him Postmaster, and he stuck there until five years ago.

Christmas Carols.

In Shakespear's time carols were sung in the streets during Christmas by waits or watches, who expected to receive gifts for their singing. Many a writer of olden times and customsref er s to the wakeful "sketches of Christmas eve." It was after the Reformation that they ceased to sing Latin hyms in the churches and substituted the sweet Christmas carols in vogue—those of a devotional nature, which were sung not only in the churches, but also through the streets, from house to house upon Christmas eve, and even after that morning and evening until the twelfth day.

In those times men were able to spare more than one brief day for the celebration of Christmas, and kept up the festival for at least twelve days. Other carols were of a lyelier nature, and were especially adapted to the revel and the feast where the lord of misrule had potent sway. The carols were also called wassail songs, and probably originated among the Anglo-Normans, who were of a convail nature. No Christmas entertainment was complete without the joyous singing of carols, and thence came the motto, "No song, no supper," for every guest at the table was expected to join in the carol. One of the rules laid down by the ancient customs was that "the ancient master of the revel is, after dinner and supper, to sing a carol, a song, and to command other gentlemen present to sing with him and the companies."

Our Homes.

We read a good deal, now-a-days; about its being the duty of women to make home attractive to their husbands, and it is said that all the petty annoyances of daily life should be kept from them, and they should find the home in holiday attire, and the meals all ready, when they return from their business avocations.

This is all well enough if it only could be carried out, and when it is practicable there is no doubt but a good wife would make it her crowning pleasure to have everything about the house in good order, and herself and the children neatly dressed to receive the father of the family. But is there not another side to the question? And when we speak of duty, is it not also as incumbent upon the husband to make home attractive to the wife?

Yes this is a phrase of the question which is not often discussed in the newspapers; and there is a tendency among men in general, to regard home as a place where the mask of politeness, which has been worn all day in their business occupations, can be cast aside, and they can show themselves in the natural man, i. e, can exhibit all their natural vices, and not restrain themselves in the least. As the head of the family they think that the ordering of its affairs devolves upon them, and there are those who incline to pay little deference to the wishes of the wife, and consult their own convenince and pleasures upon all occasions. Can there be comfort or happiness in the household where this state of affairs exists?

Can the wife love and hnor the husband who does not consult her tastes or wishes, even, in the smallest matter of the family arrangements? Is she to be condemned if she takes less interest in his comforts and pleasures, and, at length becomes alienated from such a domestic tyrant? We think the home should be always under the direct control of the wife, and that she should be allowed to order all the details connected with it; but the husband should be willing to give her aid and counsel in its affairs, and not ridicule and tease her concerning matters that seem to him too trifling to be discussed.

Then the homestead should be settled upon her, so that she can feel assured, no matter what reverses of fortune may arise, that the home which has become sanctified to her by births and deaths, and the associations of years, will be her own.

Every woman feels that this is her right, and if the husband can purchase a home, it is as much for his interest as for hers, that the deeds should be made out in her name. Then she can adorn and ornament both the house and grounds with the work of her hands, assured that its comforts and conveniences will belong to the family, and not become the property of others without her full consent; and she would strive more heartily to make the home more attractive, as each year passed by, and to have her family appreciate its charms more highly.

Lovers Lost in A Blizzard.

They went Out to Ride and Were Rescued Nearly Dead

A Bismarck (D. T.) dispatch says: During the storm the other night John Williams and Miss Annie Bartrom of Mercer county were lost while out for a ride, and were rescued when nearly dead. The young couple started for a house-warming about ten miles distant from their homes, but instead of going to the dance they drove past the house, preferring to enjoy their love-making. The storm of wind and sleet struck them about 11 o'clock, and the atmosphere was piercingly cold and damp. The horses were blinded by the storm and left the road. For several hours they wandered about on the prairie, and not until they fell over the embankment into Kulfe River did the couple know where they were. The landmarks on the river bank were familiar, and taking their bearings they drove to the house for which they started, having to go about four miles with their clothing transformed into ice. For several minutes after their arrival at the party they were unable to speak, and it took strenuous efforts and the best of care to resuscitate them.

Every good act is charity. Smiling in your brother's face is charity; and putting a wanderer aright is charity.

Jay Gould's Waistcoat.

A young friend of George Gould was dining with the family. Conversation turned on tricks, and the young friend said he could take off a man's vest without removing his coat. He explained that feat, which consists of working the vest down the arms by gradually coaxing the shoulders through the armholes. Then the vest can be removed by slipping it off under the coat sleeves. Dexterity and patience are required. The young man was positive he was the only one present, who could do it. Mr. Gould listened to the explanation and said that any man could do it, and that he could do it on the spot. The caller was zealously anxious to bet his modest pile against an equal sum to be put up by the millionaire; but the latter advised him not to be any more than a big apple, as he would be sure to lose it. Mr. Gould thereupon proceeded to perform the elusive act. He first took off his coat.

'Hold on, sir,' said the young man, 'that is not permitted; it is barred.'

'I understand that,' replied the banker: 'I'll put on the coat again. I'm only getting ready.'

Then he took off his vest and at once put on his coat, and succeeded it with putting on his vest outside his of coat.

'I'm at your service now,' he quietly said.

The young man lost an apple but gained a verification of the important truth that there is more than one way of doing a thing. In his own style there is no greater lover of quiet fun than Jay Gould.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Cost of the First Pens.

Only a few years ago Bulwer put into the mouth of his dramatic creation "Richelieu" these pregnant words: "The pen is mightier than the sword!" In the short time which has since elapsed these words have acquired a new truth and a new application: the pen has conquered the sword in the field of commerce, as completely as it had formerly triumphed in the fields of high policy and worldly government. The little civilizer (as it may well be called) is now in every hand, but within the memory of many men still living the steel pen was simply a curious and costly toy, noticeable as an ingenious mechanical fad, but not at all as an invention likely to come into practical use. The earliest form of the article was certainly not promising. A piece of sheet steel was bent into a tubular form, and cut or filed away to immitate the shape of a quill pen, the junction of the two edges forming the nib, which, of course, extended all up the back of the pen. These were known as early as 1810, but were regarded as articles de luxe, to be given away as presents, and not for use. They were highly polished, perhaps gilt or silvered, and sold for as much as five shillings each. In 1824, Mr. James Perry, the founder of a system of education once famous as the "Perry" system took up the steel pen as a practical invention, and by indomitable energy overcame the difficulties in its construction and the objections to its use. He patented several varieties and spared no expense to attain perfection. His brother informed Mr. Samuel Timmins, of Birmingham, that he paid seven shillings per pound for his steel, and five shillings per pen t the first workman he employed, and that for years afterward the price given to his workman was thirty-six shillings per gross.

Too Thickly Settled.

There was great rejoicing in the Tuffboy family. The fly-by-night express had thrown off a precious package, marked eight pounds and a half, and as it was only the fifth visitation of Providence, there was reason for rejoicing. Jim was thoughtful, decidedly thoughtful, at breakfast, and finally spoke out:

"Pop, I guess I shall have to move out."

"Why, sir? Are you not satisfied with your position here, sir?" asked his father, ironically.

"Yes, fairly satisfied; but it strikes me this family is getting a little too thickly settled."

A WONDERFUL SOLVENT.—"Mrs. Dusenberry, you remember the case of a man who swallowed a silver dollar last summer?"

"Yes, my dear."

"Well, he's rid of it. A chemist gave him a solvent. A month afterward he threw up the dollar in pieces."

"In pieces., Mrs. Dusenberry?"

"Yes, my love. In ten-cent pieces."

WHAT SHE FOUND.—It is not true that Santa Claus will not put anything into a stocking in which there is a hole. Last Christmas a society belle found a darning needle and a ball of yarn in hers.

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 17TH, 1885.

Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

PROSPECTS of a boom in the coal business next year are very favorable. It is thought that on account of the large demands the production in the Anthracite region will be larger than in any year before this.

ROBERT GARRET, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, has resigned as a director of the New Jersey Central. A conclusion drawn from this fact is, that the Baltimore & Ohio has given up hopes of ever getting control of the latter road.

THE first volume of Gen. Grant's biography, written by himself, appeared last week. It contains nineteen illustrations and fifty-nine chapters, of which the last twenty three treat of the late rebellion. In the front part of the book the General gives a history of his life. The second volume is expected to be issued next March.

WITH the exception of the small but superwise Republican journals in the country, President Cleveland's message is universally considered an able though lengthy document. Of course, a great many differ with him on certain questions, but the bulk of the message must be regarded as a fair and thorough treatise on everything pertaining to good government. The tariff gets a touch which pleases the protectionists and chills the freetraders. The silver men do not altogether like his idea of suspending the coinage of silver dollars. His views on civil service are approved by all fairminded citizens. Cleveland need not be ashamed of his message and his democratic constituents have a right to be proud of the able proclamation.

ANOTHER prominent man has joined the list of departed Americans of fame. Wm H. Vanderbilt, the richest man in the United States, or perhaps in the world, supposed to be worth fully $200,000,000 died suddenly at his residence in New York City, last Wednesday afternoon, of apoplexy of the brain, whilst in conversation with Robert Garrett, President of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The sudden demise of the millionaire repeats but the serious lesson, that great men, whether they owe their fame to brilliant achievements in war or peace, in literature or art, or to immense riches, are all doomed to meet the stern messinger of death. The news caused a ripple of excitement in the more important financial circles, but on the country at large it had but little effect. Vanderbilt is gone, but his millions remain.

THE VANDERBILT estate appears to have been divided among the descendants of the dead millionaire without favoritism or partiality. The features of the will that are of most interest to the public are the charitable bequests and the administration of the bulk of the estate as a portion of the trust during the lifetime of his children. The charitable bequests appear exceedingly small in proportion to the entire amount of the estate. As Vanderbilt never posed as a public benefactor there will be little disappointment felt that he left only one of his many millions to charitable objects.

The trust feature of the instrument will have a reassuring effect upon the great railway and other interests in which the Vanderbilt money is invested. It insures the earnest co-operation of the trustees with the immense sums which they represent in maintaining and increasing the value of the properties in which these millions form a controlling interest. On the whole, the will seems to have been the work of a very fairminded and sensible man and to leave less room for criticism than such instruments generally invite.—Times.

THE following editorial from Monday's Patriot in speaking of comparative expenses is a fair eulogy to "Uncle Sam," the popular personage representing the United States:

When Uncle Sam commenced housekeeping the expenses of his whole establishment scarcely equalled the amount that is now required for one of his smallest departments The expenditures of the general Government in 1795 were four millions. If it had been told the patriarchial economists who managed the public affairs of that early period that the time would come when the annual expenses of the national household would amount to two hundred and fifty millions, exclusive of interest on the public debt, such a seemingly wild statement would have been made to incredulous ears. Yet that was the amount that our liberal Uncle found necessary for decent housekeeping during the last fiscal year, besides fifty-one millions of dollars required for the payment of interest on his debts. One week's interest amounts to one-fourth of the sum expended for the entire Government in 1795.

As late as 1855 fifty-two millions covered all the necessary expense, which was four millions less than is now annually needed by Uncle Sam to pay pensions to those of his boys who became disabled, and to the widows of those who were killed, in defending his estate in a difficulty that occurred some years ago.

The old gentleman who personifies our nationality has about $400,000,000 in his strong box, and in that respect is far from being hard up. But as large as that amount may seem to be it is small in comparison with his debts which amount to $1,848,000,000, leaving a balance of nearly a billion and a half against him in the general account. An ordinary individual who should find such a balance on the wrong side of his ledger would think of appointing assignees, but not so with our Uncle who has fifty-five millions of endorsers and can get trusted for anything he wants.

To Fresco the State Capitol Rotunda.

HARRISBURG, December 11.—At noon to-day the Board of Public Buildings and Grounds awarded the contract for frescoing the rotunda from the floor to the dome and the corridors on both the first and second floors. The bidders were F. A. Nicholis, of Philadelphia, and Fillippo Castaginni, of Washington. Nichols was awarded the contract, his bid being $6,250.

The Susquehanna on a High.

NANTICOKE, Pa., Dec 11.—The ice in the North Branch has broken up and the river here is now running full of four-inch ice and rapidly rushing. It is now nearly 5 feet above low-water mark. The water has backed up into the creek here, covering the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad over 2 feet. All the ice passing down the North Branch is gorging at Northumberland, and at some places it is piled 10 feet high.

It is in order now for every manufacturer to praise and extol the virtues of his cough medicine, and claim it ever so much better than any other. On square business principles the proprietor of Dr Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine says if you are not satisfied with the relief and benefit obtained, if you do not consider it well worth the price paid for it, then take the empty bottle back to your dealer and get your money.

More Machinery and Less Hands.

PITTSBURG, December 11.—It is reported here by late comers from the Hocking Valley of Ohio that the coal syndicate will introduce digging and cutting machines into their mines, experiments having proved successful. The miners now work for 50 cents a ton and want 60, while the operators say that to compete with other companies they should get out coal for 40 or 45 cents a ton. The machinist will reduce the cost of production at about 34 cents a ton, one machine mining fifty tons a day, or doing the work of six men.

Justice Field, of the Supreme Court of the United States, in stating the policy of the law with regard to the Sabbath, recently made the following observations: "Laws setting aside Sunday as a day of rest are upheld, not from any right of the Government to legislate for the promotion of religious observances, but from its right to protect all persons from the physical and moral debasement which comes from uninterupted labor. Such laws have always been deemed beneficient and merciful laws, especially to the poor and dependent, to the laborers in our factories and workshops, and in the heated rooms of our cities; and their validity has been sustained by the highest court of the states".

The New Scalp Law.

For those who are interested the following epitome of the new scalp law will be found sufficiently explicit. Justices of the peace, hunters and all others should cut this out and paste it in their hats, or somewhere else where it will not soon be lost: "Wild cat, $2; foxes, either red or gray, $1; mink, weasel and hawk, 50 cents; for every owl except the Areadian screech or barn owl, 50 cents." It is the duty of any person who has killed any of the animals or birds above named and who is desirous of availing himself of the provisions of this law to produce such slain animals or birds before any justice of the peace of the county in which the same was killed, and make affidavit of the time and place of killing the same. When these requirements are complied with, the county commissioners will issue an order on the treasnrer of the proper amount.

John Snyder, a hard drinking, 45 year old man, at Hawley, Pa., entered a store while drunk and was put out. He entered again, was put out and fell, his head striking a door step and rendering him unconscious. He was placed in a wagon and was taken home, but his wife refused to let him be brought in. He was taken to his mother's and she, too refused. He was taken to the poor authorities, and they refused. He was taken to a hotel, and its proprietor refused, but let the wagon stand under a shed with the man therein. He died while another effort was being made to find him shelter. His skull was broken in, and no care could have saved his life. Those who refused him shelter thought he was on one of his regular drunken fits, from which he came out very ugly and abusive, and were afraid to have him around. Another effective temperance lecture.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.—Whereas there is a general opinion prevailing among the taxpayers throughout the county that because a collector's warrant is good for two years, they have the same length of time in which to pay their taxes. Tax Collectors frequenty complain to us that many persons make this a pretext for refusing to pay their taxes until they are actually forced to do so, and these being generally such as are best able to pay. We therefore submit for your information the following Act of Assembly of April 15, 1834, in relation thereto:

"Every collector shall, within three months after receiving the corrected duplicate, pay into the hands of the treasurer of the property, county or township, as the case may be, the whole amount of the taxes charged and assessed in such duplicate, excepting such sum as the Commissioners, or Supervisors and Overseers, as the case may be, in their discretion, may exhonerate him from, on pain of being answerable for and charged with the whole balance remaining so unpaid."

You will readily see by the above Act that tax collectors are required to pay in the full amount of their duplicates within three months after the duplicates are placed in their hands

—Some of our exchanges remark that Spinal meningitis has again made its appearance in the State. Do not expose yourself to the cold and by so doing avoid falling a victim to the disease.

AN ERROR.—In our last issue we stated that Mr. John Hoffer, late of Bellefonte, was a brother of Mrs. Amos Alexander, late of this place. He was not her brother, but her brother-in-law by first marriage.

—The first snow of the season fell on the 21st of November. The old saying is that consequently we will have 21 snows in this winter. The fourth snow fell last Sunday. At this rate the prediction may come true.

—The members of the U. B. church of this place presented their pastor, Rev. Wasson, with a lot of provisions and other useful articles last Friday evening. The treat was of course well appreciated by the recipient.

—Our barbers seem continually bent on changes and improvements in their shops. W. J. Springer last week rearranged his chairs and shelves, while Geo. Springer beautified his room by hanging up several fine engravings.

FRESH COMPLEXIONS.—If you have humors and pimples, boils and eruptions, it is because the system needs toning and purifying. Nothing will give you such good health, smooth and fresh skin and vigorous feeling as Simmons Liver Regulator.

—The scaffolds have been removed from the interior of the Ev. church and the floor is to be laid next. We understand that it is the intention of the building committee to have the church completed for conference next March.

—The Reformed Sunday School, of Aaronsburg, expect to celebrate the nativity of our Lord on Christmas eve, 24th instant, in a suitable manner. The services will consist of responsive reading and music adapted for the occasion.

—A clear head is indicative of good health and regular habits. When the body feels heavy and languid, and the mind works sluggishly, Ayer's Cathartic Pills will wonderfully assist to a recovery of physical buoyancy and mental vigor. The constipated should use them.

—After a stay of several weeks among his relatives, Mr. Frank Kauffman left for his home in Northumberland county on Tuesday morning. Frank has made lots of friends while here, who will gladly welcome him back on a more extended visit.

—We understand that it is the intention of some of our veterans to organize a G. A. R. post in this town. A meeting for that purpose will be held in the parlor of the First National Hotel on Saturday, Dec. 26th, '85. We hope the project may meet with good success.

—Wilkesbarre organized a new social society with "Anti Poking" for its name and with the object of stopping the bad fashion of "poking their noses into other people's business."

There is certainly lots of room for reform in this matter in all towns and villages, "Millheim not excluded."

CHRONIC CATARRH.—I was troubled with chronic catarrh and gathering in head, was deaf at times, had discharges from the ears, unable to breathe through nose. Before the second bottle of Ely's Cream Balm was exhausted I was cured.—C. J. Corbin, 923 Chestnut St., Philadelphia. 48-3t

CARD OF THANKS.—The undersigned and wife were quietly spending the evening, when they were surprised by the members and friends of the U. B. church, who took possession of his residence and loaded the table until it formed a pyramid of good things. We were prevailed upon to make a little speech, but a better reward than that are the smiles of God which we hope will rest upon them. A pleasant evening was spent after which the good people returned to their homes, realizing that it is better to give than to receive, and leaving their pastor with a glad heart. Ever remembering the kind people we return our thanks and invoke God's richest blessings upon them.

Millheim, Dec. 17, 1885. 2t

—Rev. M. L. Deitzler will hold regular services in the Luth. church at this place next Sunday evening. Catechetical instruction on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, and after that every other Saturday, and not every week as we announced in our last issue. Rev. Deitzler has five good-sized classes in charge and is unable to teach the Millheim class weekly.

—It appears that the Lutheran Sunday school will spare neither cost nor labor to make their entertainment on Christmas eve a most delightful affair for young and old and to celebrate the anniversary of our Saviour's birth in a becoming manner. The call for funds to defray expenses was liberally responded to last Sunday forenoon and the interest manifested was very encouraging.

—It's well enough to talk and brag about intended enterprises and building which will be undertaken by you or anybody else, but after all a fine structure already erected is what talks. And in this connection we must not neglect to mention S. D. Musser's open shed at the rear end of the old hardware building corner of Penn and Main street. It does great credit to the ingenuity of the proprietor.

"PEACE ON EARTH AND GOOD-WILL TOWARDS MEN."—For nearly nineteen centuries these gracious words have touched the hearts of humanity with the warmth of Divine love. It is a pleasing thought that every year the Christmas time widens the circle of its forgiving and beneficient influence. Parents repeat the story of the lowly Christ-child in the manger—God's great gift to the people; tokens of love and esteem pass from hand to hand, estranged friends forget their differences, heart-aches are cured and troubles are smoothed over. Let us all then join in the same spirit on the Christmas day of 1885 and endeavor to make the day memorable to the little ones, to friends, to parents, and last but not least to the poor. Christmas should be the most joyous of holidays and two weeks hence we should all be in a frame of mind to wish our fellow mortals a "Merry Christmas."

—No other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the best combination of vegetable blood purifiers, with the Iodide of Potassium and Iron, ever offered to the public.

—Last Thursday the great trial of John T. Cox, the murderer of Milo Jump, at Northumberland, June 25th, 1885, commenced at Sunbury. Over three hundred witnesses are to be examined and the probabilities are that the case will take up a week. Hon. A. H. Dill, of Lewisburg, Hon. Chas. H. Wolfe, of the same place, Hon. S. P. Wolverton, of Northumberland Co., and Geo. Hill and son, also residents of the county, are the counsel of defendant. The other attorney from Lewisburg is Daniel Cox, a brother of the defendant. He does not take an active part in the trial except to counsel with his brother attorneys. The attorneys for the Commonwealth are District Attorney Mahan, Ex-District Attorney Lewis Dewart, Geo. W. Zeigler, Esq., from Sunbury, and Cornelius Smith, Esq., from Scranton. It will be seen that the best talent is represented on either side, and that it will be a drawn battle. The trial creates intense excitement throughout Northumberland and also neighboring counties.

—Prof. Barret of St. Lawrence county, N. Y., speaking of pulmonary diseases, says: Not one death occurs now where twenty died before Downs' Elixir was known. Over fifty years of constant success places Downs' Elixir at the head of the long list of cough remedies.

THIRTY-NINTH ANNUAL SESSION OF THE CENTRE COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.—Will be held in the Court House, Bellefonte, Pa., beginning Dec. 28, '85 at 1:30 p. m. and closing Jan. 1, 1886. The following evening lectures and entertainments will take place during the session: Monday evening, Dec. 28—"Eastern Question," Dr. Atherton; Tuesday evening—National Work of W. C. T. U., Mrs. Mary M. Hunt; Wednesday evening—Readings and Impersonations, A. P. Burbank; Thursday evening—State Education, Hon. Henry Houck; Thursday afternoon, Dec. 31st will be Directors' day. Instructors present during the Institute: Prof. D. C. Murphy, Central Normal School, History, Geography, Drawing. Prof. E. L. Kemp, Keystone Normal, General School Work, Natural History. Prof. Samuel Dodds, Stone Valley Academy. Hon. Henry Houck, Deputy State Superintendent.

—We see by the Selinsgrove Tribune that Mr. M. L. Wagonseller, a commercial travelling man, who frequently registers at the Musser House in this place, recently celebrated the 20th anniversary of his married life. Their residence in aforesaid town was filled with many guests and the presents were numerous and costly. Rev. Yutzy addressed the happy bride and groom of twenty years ago in a few pointed and well-chosen remarks.

Dinner—Roast Turkey, Roast Turkey stuffed with oysters, Oyster Pot Pie, Stewed Chicken, Roast Lamb, Roast Beef, Roast Pork. Appropriate side dishes including the rarest delicacies of the season will be on the table.

Neighboring News.

SMITH TOWN.

The butchering season is over.

On Monday morning all the farmers in the neighborhood could be found at the blacksmithshop to have their horses rough-shod.

John Smith, our blacksmith, is on the sick list.

Geo. Buck, Millheim's photographer, was in our village last Friday with his instruments. We believe he did some work for Henry Keen.

Last Friday evening there was a spelling bee in the Pike School House and by all reports a nice time was had. Smith Town prides itself on having two of the best spellers in Penns Valley, namely Smith and Osman.

Geo. Rhymstine, of Lock Haven, and Milton Kern of this place, two boss hunters, shot six fine raccoons on Brush mountain, north of here, last Friday. The next day it fairly swarmed with hunters, but they returned home empty-handed.

On Saturday Ed. Swartz drove over Frank Duck's large dog with a two-horse wagon and broke one of his legs.

Mr. Royer, of Brushvalley only claimed one of those cattle at Swartz's, the remaining two are still there waiting for an owner.

W. C. Duck visited the Millheim schools the other day and is full of praise for the same. JUMBO.

AARONSBURG.

Four degrees below zero last week.

Col. Royer, from Brushvalley, took dinner at Mr. Thos. Yearick's on last Friday. Mr. Royer will be 90 years old in April next.

D. H. Lenker will build a furniture and repair shop on the vacant lots lately purchased of E. Burd on North 2nd street. The old shop on Main street will be used for a finishing and sales room.

Mr. Fiedler, of the Bellefonte Keystone Gazette, was in town on last Friday soliciting subscribers for his paper. He was well satisfied with his day's work in our little town. ANOTHER.

Spring Mills.

Prof. Krise is now snugly housed in his new dwelling house at this place.

Rev. James D. Wilson, D. D. spent a few days with his aged father last week. He has again returned to his field of labor in New York City.

R. Kline, our veteran constable, was much excited on last Monday, a prisoner having escaped his clutches. The constable is not a very good marksman, as he shot a number of times at the fugitive, but missed his mark every time.

Jacob I. Solt was out for raccoons on Monday last and as a reward for his labors returned with six large specimens. Jacob is a boss hunter. *

MADISONBURG.

Mrs. Bitner and son are visiting at her brother's, Andrew Ocker, at this place.

Benj. W. Royer lost two valuable colts last week, one is a spring colt, the other a four-yearling. The latter was insured in the Union county Mutual Live Stock Insurance Company for $1.50.

H. R. Fiedler lost two hogs the other day. This makes in all 18 which died for Mr. Fiedler this fall. Dr. Lee and Uriah Shafer also lost one last week.

E. H. Reber commenced his singing on Monday evening with a class of about 80 singers. Wish you good success.

Miss Ida Ocker returned home on Saturday from Coleport.

Thos. Hazel, who was shot in the arm last week, is able to be around again.

An Efficient Remedy

In all cases of Bronchial and Pulmonary Affections is AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. As such it is recognized and prescribed by the medical profession, and in many thousands of families, for the past forty years, it has been regarded as an invaluable household remedy. It is a preparation that only requires to be taken in very small quantities, and a few doses of it administered in the early stages of a cold or cough will effect a speedy cure, and may, very possibly, save life. There is no doubt whatever that

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Has preserved the lives of great numbers of persons, by arresting the development of Laryngitis, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and Pulmonary Consumption, and by the cure of those dangerous maladies. It should be kept ready for use in every family where there are children, as it is a medicine far superior to all others in the treatment of Croup, the alleviation of Whooping Cough, and the cure of Colds and Influenza, ailments peculiarly incidental to childhood and youth. Promptitude in dealing with all diseases of this class is of the utmost importance. The loss of a single day may, in many cases, entail fatal consequences. Do not waste precious time in experimenting with medicines of doubtful efficacy, while the malady is constantly gaining a deeper hold, but take at once the speediest and most certain to cure,

Cooking For Company.

I always keep a supply of well cooked food ready at all times, in case of unexpected company, having learned a lesson in my earlier housekeeping days, when a small horde of relatives came, without notice, to pay me a short visit. They came about tea time and found me with a pantry scanty in the extreme and the store two miles away. I was young and proud, and the humiliation of borrowing enough from one of the neighbors to make out a repast taught me to be always prepared with something at least to make out a decent meal.

Too many housekeepers, who are naturally good cooks, fall into the way of slighting the cooking of their every day meals, and wait till company comes to show off their best efforts in the culinary line.

I think this is a mistake. The men folks are oftener kept in good spirits by having their meals nicely prepared and promptly served, and the saying that "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," is true according to my notion.

Cook as well for your husband as you do for your company and there will be peace in the family. To possess the knowledge of making good white or brown bread, common sense pudding and pastry, delectable soups and stews, or of cooking steaks, chops or ham in an appetizing manner, is of more value than knowing how to make Charlotte Russe, cream meringue, angel's food or black fruit cake, though these last may be all well enough in their way.—Daisy Eyesight in Farm and Household.

Deposits From Comets.

The bed of the ocean, says a recent writer, is to an enormous extent covered with lava and pumice stone. Still more remarkable is it to find the floor of the ocean covered in many parts with the dust of meteorites. Between Honolulu and Tahiti, at a depth 2,350 fathoms—over two miles and a half—a vast layer of this material exists. Falling upon land this impalpable dust is indistinguishable, but accumulating for centuries in the sea depths it forms a wondrous story of the continuous bombardment of this planet by comentary bodies.

"WHAT was the text yesterday?" asked a father who was busy working his ward to attend church.

"Nothing but leaves," promptly replied his son.

Subsequent investigation showed that the boy had spent the day in rustling through the woods for chestnuts and returned empty-handed. A protracted meeting in the woodshed followed to see if the youth would shed any more such information.

Surface Indications

What a miner would very properly term "surface indications" of what is beneath, are the Pimples, Stics, Sore Eyes, Boils, and Cutaneous Eruptions with which people are annoyed in spring and early summer. The effete matter accumulated during the winter months, now makes its presence felt, through Nature's endeavors to expel it from the system. While it remains, it is a poison that festers in the blood and may develop into Scrofula. This condition causes derangement of the digestive and assimilatory organs, with a feeling of enervation, languor, and weariness—often lightly spoken of as "only spring fever." These are evidences that Nature is not able, unaided, to throw off the corrupt atoms which weaken the vital forces. To regain health, Nature must be aided by a thorough blood-purifying medicine; and nothing else is so effective as which is sufficiently powerful to expel from the system even the taint of Hereditary Scrofula.

The medical profession indorse AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and many attestations of the cures effected by it come from all parts of the world. It is, in the language of the Hon. Francis Jewett, ex-State Senator of Massachusetts and ex-Mayor of Lowell, "the only preparation that does real, lasting good."

EIGHT FIRST PREMIUMS WITHIN A MONTH.

Baugh's Raw Bone Manures and High Grade Agricultural Chemicals and other products, on exhibition at the Pennsylvania State Fair, September 8th to 20th, 1884, were awarded five first premiums.

They were also awarded three first premiums as follows:

Lehigh County Fair at Allentown, Pa., September 30th to October 3rd; Berks County Fair at Kutztown, Pa., October 7th to 10th; Northampton County Fair at Nazareth, Pa., October 7th to 10th.

Baugh's Raw Bone Manures have secured a great many premiums including Centennial, Paris and other medals.

Farmers have discovered that Raw Animal Bone is a most valuable enricher of the soil and producer of crops. Baugh's $25 Phosphate contains the life and essence of Animal Bones. This article is manufactured only by Baugh & Sons, Office No. 20 South Delaware Avenue, Philadelphia.

Read what the people say concerning the ability of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil to cure asthma, catarrh, croup, colds, etc. Mrs. Dora Koch of Buffalo, says: "For croup it is decidedly efficacious." [Mrs. Jacob Mellisor of Marion, Ohio, says the same thing.] S. S. Graves, Akron, N. Y., writes: "Had asthma of the worst kind, took one dose of Thomas' Eclectric Oil and was relieved in a few minutes. Would walk five miles for this medicine and pay $5 a bottle for it." Druggist C. R. Hall, Grayville, Ill., says: "Cured an ulcerated throat for me in twenty-four hours." "Sat up in bed and coughed till the clothing was wet with perspiration. My wife insisted that I use Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first teaspoonful RELIEVED me." E. H. Perkins, Creek Centre, N. Y., Thomas' Eclectric Oil is also a TIP-TOP external application for rheumatism, cuts, scalds, burns, bites, bruises, etc. When visiting the druggist, ask him what he knows of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil; if he has been long in the drug trade, be sure he will speak highly of it.

Worked Wonders.

"My daughter was very bad off on account of a cold and pain in her lungs. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured her in twenty-four hours. One of the boys was cured of sore throat. This medicine has worked wonders in our family." Alvah Pinckney, Lake Mohopac, N. Y.

QUAKER
Is the Best
TABLE SAUCE.
Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Lea & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges first as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor much really prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and purity. The inventor has by years of study from recipes contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, cassia, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger, and peppers and buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than he very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.
